

American Indian Studies
Call for Temporary Non-Tenure Track Faculty Pool
2021 - 2022

American Indian Studies is currently accepting applications for the department lecturer pool for 2021-2022. We are especially in need of lecturers available to teach face-to-face courses.

Classification and Salary: Appointment is expected to be at the rank of temporary faculty or lecturer with salary commensurate with union scale, degree-in-hand, and experience as the budget allows.

Qualifications: Required: A minimum M.A./M.S./J.D. degree from an accredited institution.
Preferred: Experience teaching at the university level.

Applications: Individuals wishing to be included in the pool must submit a letter of interest, a current curriculum vitae, contact information for three references, and sample syllabi for any course(s) they wish to be considered for via email to:

Joanne Barker
Professor and Chair, American Indian Studies
San Francisco State University
1600 Holloway Avenue
San Francisco, CA 94132
jmbarker@sfsu.edu

San Francisco State University is an Equal Opportunity Employer with a strong commitment to diversity. We welcome applicants of all ethnic, racial and gender identities, sexual orientations as well as people with disabilities. We particularly encourage those who may be from historically underrepresented groups

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer
Title IV, Section 503 Employer